RUFUS KING & CO. OPPICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY. From Madison.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE SENTINEL. Madison, March 4.

The House is making but poor progress about these days. A great deal of important business is yet to be acted upon, and much of it will doubt less fall through from want of time. The afterneons are occupied with the Bank bill in commit tee, and slow enough it moves along, as you will have seen by the telegraph record of yesterday's proceedings. There are some members who are opposed to banks, but who consider themselves ted, and with a consciencious desire, to as rist in making a good and safe bill. Accordingly, they feel obliged to offer, and advocate all sorts of iments that happen to occur to them, however clearly they are against the expressed sense of the House. I shouldn't like to be called upon to point out the "conscientious" gentlemen. There is another sort of members, who may be alled the "nervous" class, who are not satisfied to eit still and vote down the host of amendments proposed, but think it necessary to dispute and ise them-a course which only excites counter dispute and discussion, and wastes time. There is one gentleman, Mr. Strong, of Iowa Co, who is frank enough to avow that he is in favor of passing such a Banking Law-since we must have a of some kind-as will effectually prevent capitalists from entering upon the business within tioned, who must talk the time away in ineffect ual resistance-who must talk of railroad bonds and small bill prohibitions, de, de,-who, for the sake of talking, must talk-if nothing more ap-

And of limbo, and of furies, and I know not what"for these I have no visitations of compunction .-But there is a small select number of worthy men from the anti-bank West, who see the folly of opposition, and sit in silence, while—to quote the "melancholy Jaques"—"the big round tears course one another down their innocent noses in | ing and hearing. piteous chase." For the sorrows of these good nartyrs, I confess to a certain sympathy :-

"Mine eyes smell onions-1 shall neep anon." A number of interesting and important reports cane in this morning. The Judiciary committee led off with one, adverse to the bills for extra clerks in the State offices. They say that they find no constitutional right to make the appropriations. After another glauce at the constitution mider the head of "Secretary of State," I cannot hold to the opinion expressed by me some time since. Bo it right or wrong, that document seems to prohibit, expressly, any extra appropriations for clerks in that office. -The committee on Education and the School and University Lands, reported in writing, with three important bills, one for the organization of townhip academics, one for organizing time superinendents into a county board, and, inasmuch as the committee thinks the sum of $7,00 too high a minimum for University Lands, another bill providing for a re-appraisal.

The Committee on Charitable Institutions 1eported in favor of a state institution for the Deaf

It is favorable to the hon- when the Coursel Commenced Summing up. esty and integrity of the Commissioners of the For the better accommodation of the large number Board of Works, and the officers. The Committee say that they have no means of verifying the both sides, the afternoon session of the Court was accuracy of the reports relative to the precise use of money and warrants, item by item, but think that there is no doubt as to their accuracy. That there have been errors in location, and errors in construction, but they are the result of inexperience. That the clamor against the present Board has, in their opinion, come from aspirants to their places. That Mr Crosswell has done his duty well in all the defonce. The ression will again be held in respects, and that Messrs. Henning and Murdock | Gardiners' Hall. have assisted the committee in their investigations. mittee still nurther enter upon an argu ment against the report of the Judiciary Committee on bill, No. 120. Concerning the restrictions of the Congressional grant, they insist that the only intention of Congress in making the restriction must have been to present the accumulation of too much money in the hands of the Stale! They even go so far as to think that nothing done heretofore or to be done hereafter, in carrying on the work, Is likely to contravene the provisions of the restriction. (There is some obscurity in this opinion as expressed by the committee; perhaps it will be clear enough when we see it in print.) They also combat the suggestion of the Judiciary Committee that the State has no right to impose tolls, the rivers and carrying places being common highway by the ordinance of '87. The committee insist that the rivers concerned were not "navigable waters." If they were not, it would be difficult to explain what the ordinance means by the words "the navigable waters, and the carrying places, connecting the same." That is, what streams can be meant, if not the Fox and Wisconsin, with some (very) few others.

An examination of the ordinance and the grant of land, both of them contained in the Revised Statutes, will show to any one what the real state of the case is. I do not feel disposed to say more upon the question, except to reiterate the expression of the opinion that the Judiciary Committee are right as to their interpretation the terms of the grant. Such must be the case or the provise in the grant is nonsene : for Congress, it would seem, could not have set itself not at some future time, have too much money in the treasury of the proposed improvement. The report is very musatisfactory to many of the members, and more especially so to many citizone now here, living on the line of the works. The latter complain that they have not been allowed a fair hearing. How this is, may probably appear. Meantime, one of two things is certain It being granted that the fund has got into debt, and that, while contracts were let below the eszimates, they have yet been increased since the lettings were made-either nature or chance is dead against the State in going forward with the work, or somebody is in fault. If nobody is in fault, and there was only ignorance on the part of the managers of the Improvement, that is a reason why no more of such ignorance should be entrusted with the further progress of that important work. That is all, just now.

Mr. Barlow, from the select committee on the Fugitive Slave law de reported also. Messre-Giles and Averbeck, the other members of the committee concur in the report. It is very strong against the policy, justice, and constitutionality of the law, and concludes with the following re-

Resolved, That the so called Fugitive Slave Law is a law which infringes upon the spirit, if not the letter of the constitution of the U. S.—that it is an outrage upon the moral sense of the citizens of the free States, an infringement of our State rights; that it is tyramical in its operation, and ought to be revealed.

red, That our Senators in Congress be instructed and our Representatives be requested to vote, and use all proper and legitimate means in their power for its repeal. The Committee of the whole made no alteration in sections 5, 6, 8 of the Bank Bill. Section received an alteration transposing a couple of words, by the committee. Section I was not altered, and section I0 was consolidated with section 4. The select committee reported a substitute for section 11, and as it was quite lengthy, it was ordered to be printed.

Mr. Peak followed, utterly disclaiming any party feeling in the matter, and warned his democratic friends "that they had better not place themselves in opposition to banks," or it would injure their prospects materially. La-ter in the afternoon, Dr. Van Nostrand 1050, and ravely asked permission to give his democratic riends some advice. Leave being granted, he told them that they would do well to keep quiet, and let the friends of the bill carry it through; for, i they did not, they would be beld responsible fo he delay and embarras-ment.

There was a manifest improvement in feeling after these little occurrences, and more rapid prog ess was made.

CHICAGO CHARTER ELECTION The Charter Election in Chicago, last Tuesday, resulted in the success of Mr. GURNLE, the present incumbent of the Mayoralty, by a handsome majority, and in the election of Mr. Howe, as Marshal-Mr. Voss, City Attorney, and Mr. Maniners Treasurer. The People voted to have Wate Works, yeas 1804, nays 350. The vote for Mayor stood thus :---

RADCLEFE'S TRIAL .- All the testimony in this deeply interesting case was given in by Saturday of our citizens, anxious to hear the arguments on held in Gardiner's Hall, which was densely packed with engor auditors. The case for the prosecution was summed up by Mr. District Att'y. BUTLER in a very able and interesting speech, which occupied the Court from 3 to half past 6 P. M. PREMATURE FUNERAL HONORS.-A curious incident is related in the Natchez Courier, the first instance we have ever known of a Legislature passing resolutions of respect to a deceased member who was not dead. . The whole affair, as stated, is most singular :--

"Another strange announcement was made in the House of Representatives this morning. You recollect of my having written you that Mr. Cook, of Tippah, in solemn tones, some days since amounced the death of his colleague Mr. Redfearn. The usual resolutions, badges, copies of resolutions to the widow, de, were attended to. A short time afterwards Mr. Keith produced to the House a letter from the deceased gentleman, denving his death, and moved a recall of the resolution. The House thereupon resolved that no member should announce the death of a colleague hereafter on the strength of telegraphic intelligence. This morning Mr. Moody had the melancholy duty of stating that Mr. Redfearn had taken a relapse, and was really dead."

The Land Warrant Assignment bill was exterday laid on the table by the House, by the ceisive vote of 100 to 34. We would shout if we colleved the bill were stone dead, but we apprehend believed the bil were stone dead, but we apprehend that it will be galvanized into some semblance of vitality again. It has been killed now by piling tiders upon it, supposing that it would carry them all through, and it has broken down under the load. O that it would say down —N. Y. Tribune

The whole West will say amen to that wish.-The vote by which this most objectionable measure was laid upon the table in the House of Rep resentatives induces us to hope that it cannot be revived and forced through that body. We are glad to see that all three of the Members from this gravely about providing that Wisconsin should State, Mesors. Dory, Durker and Eastman, roted to kill the bill.

> PARDON OF A. W. BARNARD.—We learn that the U. S. Marshal, Capt. Corron, received on Saturday last, from President FILLMORF, a pardon for A. W. Barnarp, who was tried and convicted, some two years since, of robbing the Mails in the Fond du Lac P. O. Barnard was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment in the State Prison, of which term two years have clapsed. He was a mere youth at the time the crime was committed and was doubtless the victim of older and mactived rogues. This fact, his uniform good conduct since he was arrested, his youth, inexperience and heartfelt-reportance, and the carnest representations made in his behalf, pleaded strongly and successfully with the President, for the exercise of executive elemency. Barnard is now at Waupun, hav-ing been removed thither from this City come nonthe since.

He trusted that no such blot would rest on the State and its character.

ing of the Post Oflice. There is a meaning in all this, which tells powerfully, in my mind, against the prisoner.

Ross and prisoner then went to prisoner's house and had tee, with some friends, and Thompson, who were there; and about dusk they left, and walked this way, as the prisoner stated, until they came to the corner of Martin's Block, and then they parted. Now, did they part then? The prisoner will they called at no other place, but that they parted there. Now, is that natural? Is a natural, that David Ross and Wan. P. Raddille, who had been in all the Saloons in town together, should, on the night before his departure for Cincinnati, part at 8 o'clock, at Martin's corner, without a parting glass? This is false. It is not true—they never parted there. Did they part there? No; we see them again on Walker's Point. They left Walker's Point at 6% o'clock; Farman saw them there theu, and he saw them there again in 1 or 2 hours after, crossing the street. Now, Centlemen, is that evidence true? You will judge whether it is or not. It was sought to impeach Farman's evidence by the testimony of Brundt, and a subpocen was issued for him, but no such impeachment was effected. Mrs. Smith testified that she saw Radeliffe, Ross and Big Joe, on Walker's Point, near the place of the murder; they were going West, and she going East, on Lake street.

[Here countel was interrupted by the Judge, who said that the evidence was, that they were distance of the skull; don't recollect the shape of skull in back of head; there was a bruiss under the right eye; doesn't think it would take 3 blows to make the triangular wound; one blow of the rivetting hammer could not have made the wound on temple; one blow of the other instrument might have produced the wound; said that this instrument was the last instrument that would have occurred to his instrument that would know how she came to epeak of seeing Ross; she sold she was living with Radeliff and another man on the wound; said that this instrument was the last instrument that would have occurred to his middle for surfaces would generally correspond; although the thickness varies.

It is in proof that the pricence, was not only acquainted with Ross peculiarly affairs, but that he knew how much moderate he had as dis robot like of can be head in a inniary affairs, but that he mew now much money he had, and in what kind of com he had it in. own house he also stated it; he said Ross has got his affairs all settled up, and has his money rate about him, and is leaving to-morrow morning for Cincinnati? What does this observation of itadellife signify? It cannot be construed favorably to the prisoner's innocence. At that moment the prisoner's mind was bent on Rose' death, to possess himself of his means; and from that moment, he pursued a straight course, following him all around the city, determined to possess himself of that money he bote Ross loft.

Several witnesses swore, that about the time of Rose' death, and before it. Radellife spake about purchasing property, and that his means did not camble him to purchase it; he was in want of monoy; he made sovernal applications to friends for the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official of the loan of money; he was in destifute official offic curse of a for? It so, why have they not shown it? No, gentiomen, that was capether falsehood; he had not received any inopey from his brother; he was counting on Ross' money, with the warm blood of his victim on it. That is the only conclusion that can be drawn from those statements of the prisoner, and that he was making arrangements to dispose of it in the purchase of real estate.

Now, was that the clean white shirt found by the officers next morning? who will believe it? why he was remarked as being nearly dressed down to sundown on that evening—and Mies Culver at 3 o'clock joked with him about the stiff white collar of his shirt cutting his ears. Is this consistent with the dirty shirt found, being the one he wore on Sunday? Did he, on the Sunday so soil the shirt, that it was put into the dirty clothes in the clothes basket, and taken into another chamber and deposited there with the soiled clothes? why not leave it; till morning. The dirty shirt is an important circumstance in this case and the defence are aware of it. Mis. Thompson swore to nothing particular, except to the fact that the shirt found was the one won by the paisoner on the previous day. Did you not observe her manner? She swore Rateliff wore a white shirt in pto Wednesday previous, and that the white shirt was washed on Wednesday, and that he wrote the hickory shirt from Wednesday till Sunday, and then put on a clean white shirt. Was this tue? Is she entitled to credit? She convicted herself of falsehood. Her story is incredible, musual and impossible. Did Rateliff change white shirt would not be fit to wear again? Mrs. Thompson know the fact, she was a boander and a friend of the family, and did the washing herself—she must have known she was committing perjury. It is unpleasant to deal with the evidence of a witness in this manner, but I feel called on to do so. My duty to the public requires it, and I will do it. Gentlomen, not only is her story inconsistent with truth, but she is contradicted by the eath of several witnesses. Mr. Lawrence swears that on. Friday Rateliff was at his place, and that he had on a white shirt, and was dressed nearly, and that if he lead on a hickory shirt he would have noticed it. W. Rusker, Eli Webb, Wm. Russell and J. B.
